

VOLUME 5, ISSUE 5 - SPRING 2009 SUPPLEMENTAL

Note to Subscribers

Dear Subscriber,

We appreciate your subscription to the Shidler Journal of Law, Commerce + Technology, and want you to be the first to know about some exciting changes coming to our Journal. Starting June 2010, our Journal will become the Washington Journal of Law, Technology & Arts. We decided to change the Journal's title after we joined a novel University of Washington School of Law research program: the Law, Technology & Arts Group \(LTA\).

The LTA takes a comprehensive approach to legal issues involving technological and artistic innovation, and was formed in 2009 when the School of Law merged the Center for Advanced Study & Research on Intellectual Property (CASRIP), the Shidler Center for Law, Commerce + Technology, and the Graduate Program in Intellectual Property Law & Policy. Our title change means that these various divisions are joining us in our commitment to deliver concise legal analysis of relevant topics. In short, we are very proud and energized to be a part of this new group at the University of Washington School of Law.

What does this mean for our subscribers? The Washington Journal of Law, Technology & Arts will continue to publish the same succinct legal research that you have come to expect from the Shidler Journal of Law, Commerce + Technology. We will continue to publish in an electronic format, and your subscription will still be free. Our new partnership with the LTA will simply allow us to publish additional pertinent and cutting-edge legal analysis.

We thank you for your continued support of our Journal and look forward to delivering our inaugural issue during the coming months. Please stay tuned.

Sincerely yours,

Alexander J. Casey
Editor-in-Chief 2009

Gareth Lacy
Editor-in-Chief 2010